Youth Innovation Competition on Global Governance

YICGG 2010, Shanghai, China

Dear students,

We are very pleased to inform you that you are invited to the 4th Youth Innovation Competition on Global Governance (YICGG), which will be held at Fudan University, Shanghai, China, during this summer.

WHAT IS YICGG?

Youth Innovation Competition on Global Governance (YICGG) is initiated by the School of International Relations and Public Affairs (SIRPA) of Fudan University, which is open to university students worldwide. In this competition, participants are called upon to design projects regarding global governance, which provides them the opportunity to show their originality, creativity, and the sense of initiation.

All three previous competitions held respectively in Fudan University (Shanghai, China, 2007), Tor Vergata University (Rome, Italy, 2008), Ilia Chavchavadze State University (Tbilisi, Georgia, 2009) attracted hundreds of young people all over the world. YICGG is designed to encourage participants to attend to global issues, stimulate their innovation, enhance global civic awareness, and shoulder their responsibility for a common future of humanity.

WHAT IS THE THEME OF THIS YEAR?

“Glocalization” is the theme of YICGG 2010: nowadays, globalization is a major factor for the success of global governance. However, some different understandings on global governance have recently appeared, and one of them is glocalization. The word “glocalization” is the combination of “globalization” and “localization”, which implies one mode of global governance: to think globally and act locally.

WHAT ARE EXPECTED FROM YOU?

This competition will be a 5-day event in the summer of 2010. As previous ones,

YICGG 2010 will be a three-phase competition. The first phase requires each team to submit an original case study to support their point of view on glocalization, either for or against. The qualified teams are encouraged to present their projects in the second phase. In the third phase, all the participants will be regrouped into different “world teams”, and a final proposal will be submitted by each World Team, explaining the design of their project. We look forward to witnessing the birth of creative and ambitious blueprints or projects through this competition.

WHAT IS SPECIAL THIS YEAR?

This year, participants will not only enjoy the opportunity to speak out their new ideas, receive face-to-face guidance from world top-rank scholars in global governance field, meet young elites worldwide and build their social network, but also have the excellent opportunity to visit magnificent World Expo in Shanghai.

Dear friends, come on and join us! To be devoted to this exciting competition, as well as explore and enjoy the unexpected surprises in Shanghai! We are looking forward to meeting you here at Fudan University.

All the best,
The preparatory committee for YICGG 2010
